

Technology Enabled Collaboration for Genealogists

Tony Hanson

Objective:

Provide an overview of tools that are enabling
Collaborative Family Research

Collaboration

Being an active member of a group that works together to achieve a common goal

Virtual Groups You Are Part Of*

- DNA testing is revealing true/genetic relationships
- New tools & capabilities are simplifying how you access this information
- Other information about your family is available “in the cloud”

*Even if you are not aware that you are!

Your Challenge

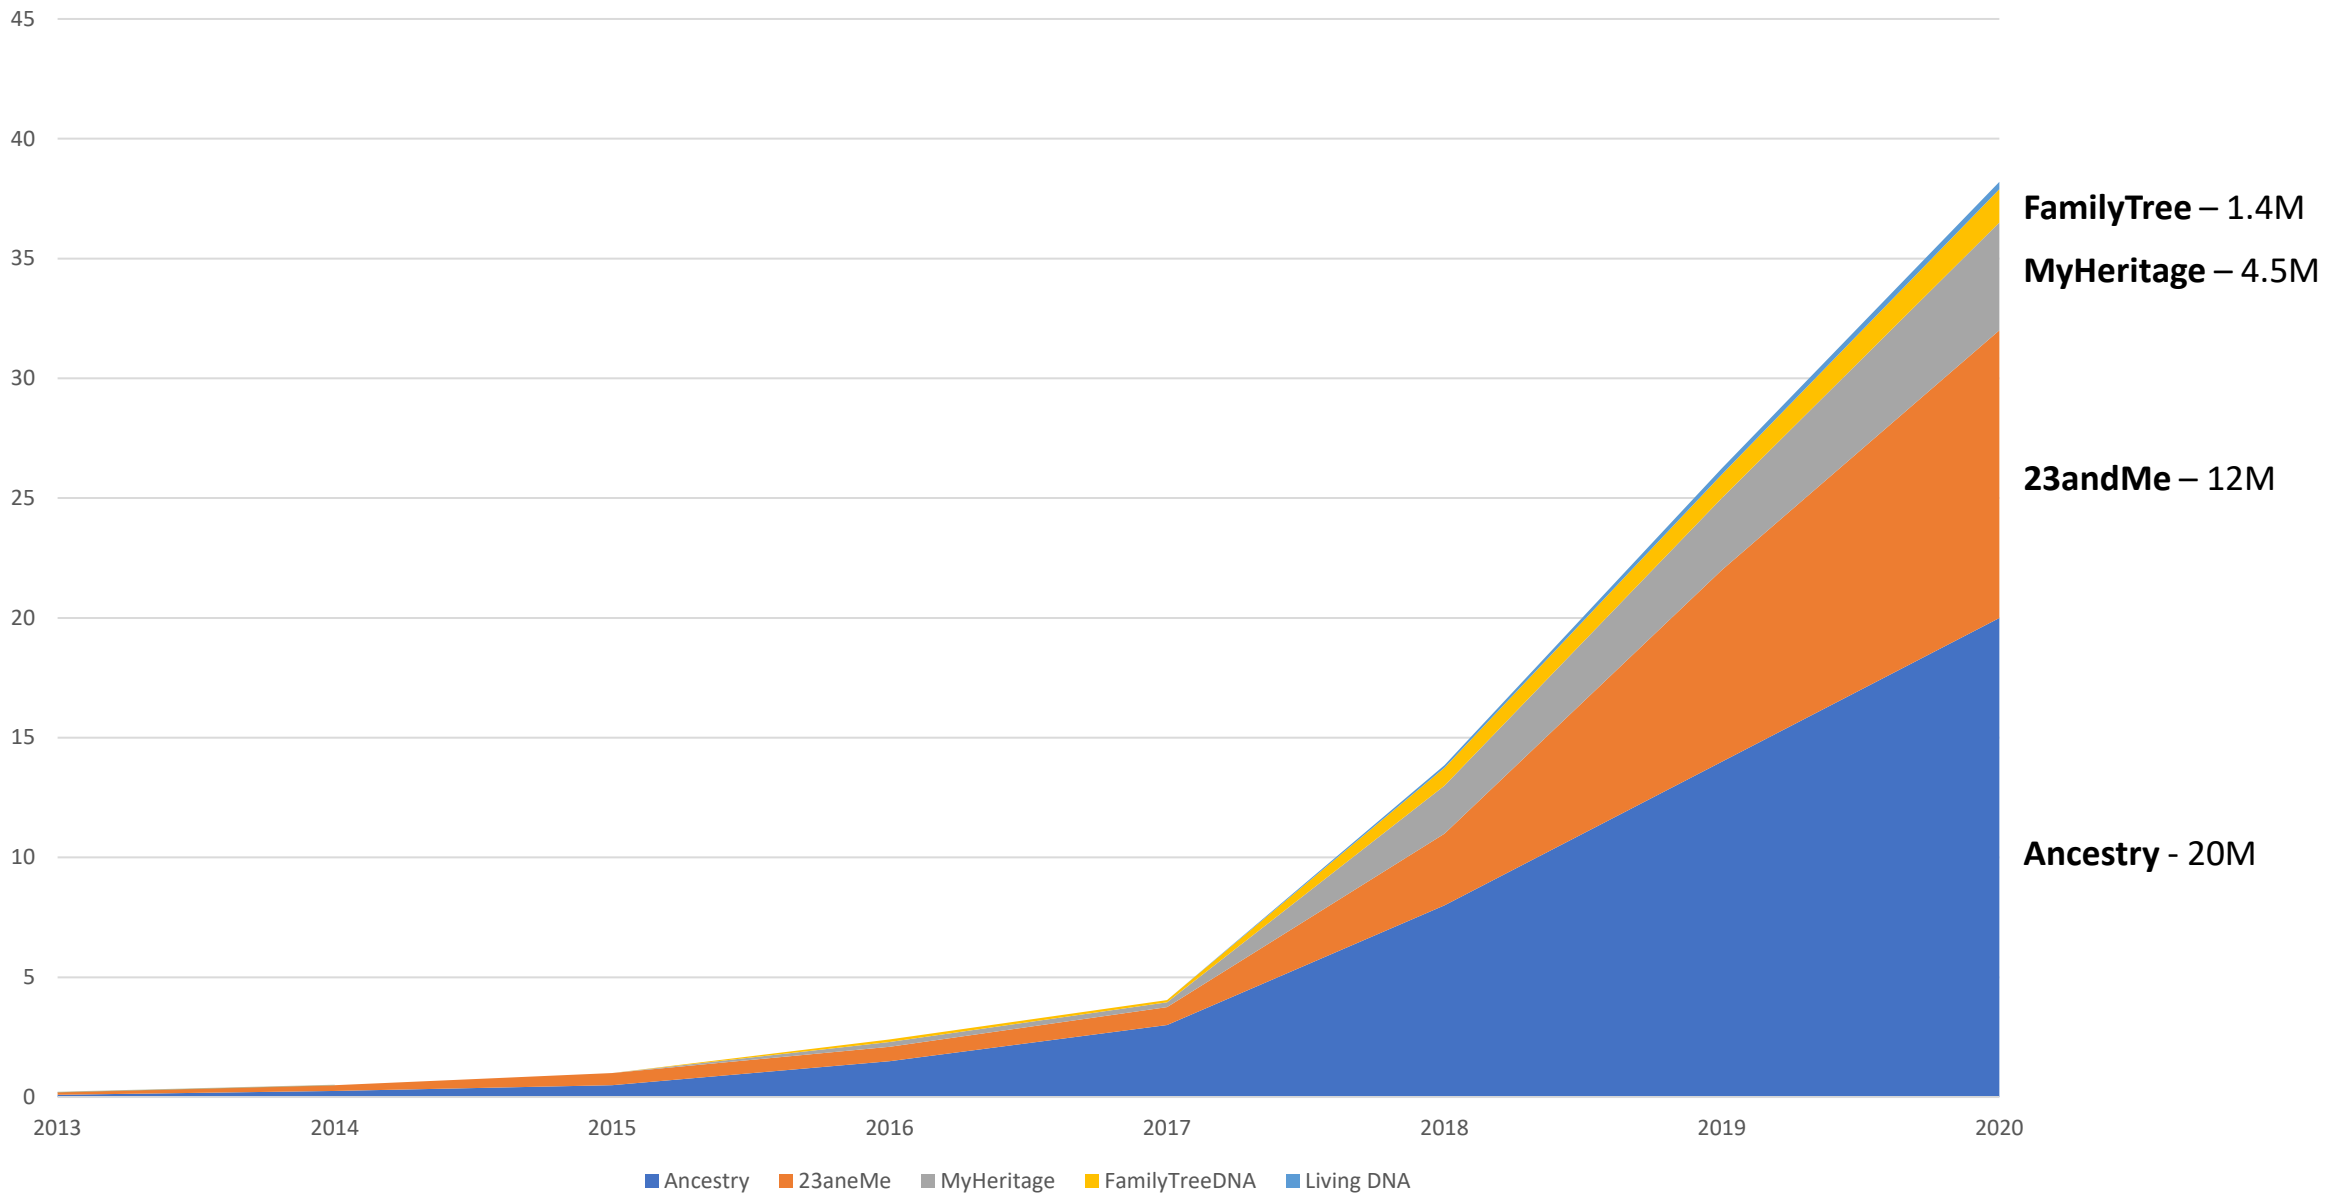

- Know what is out there
- Take advantage of what is available!
- Consider “giving back” by making what you know available too!

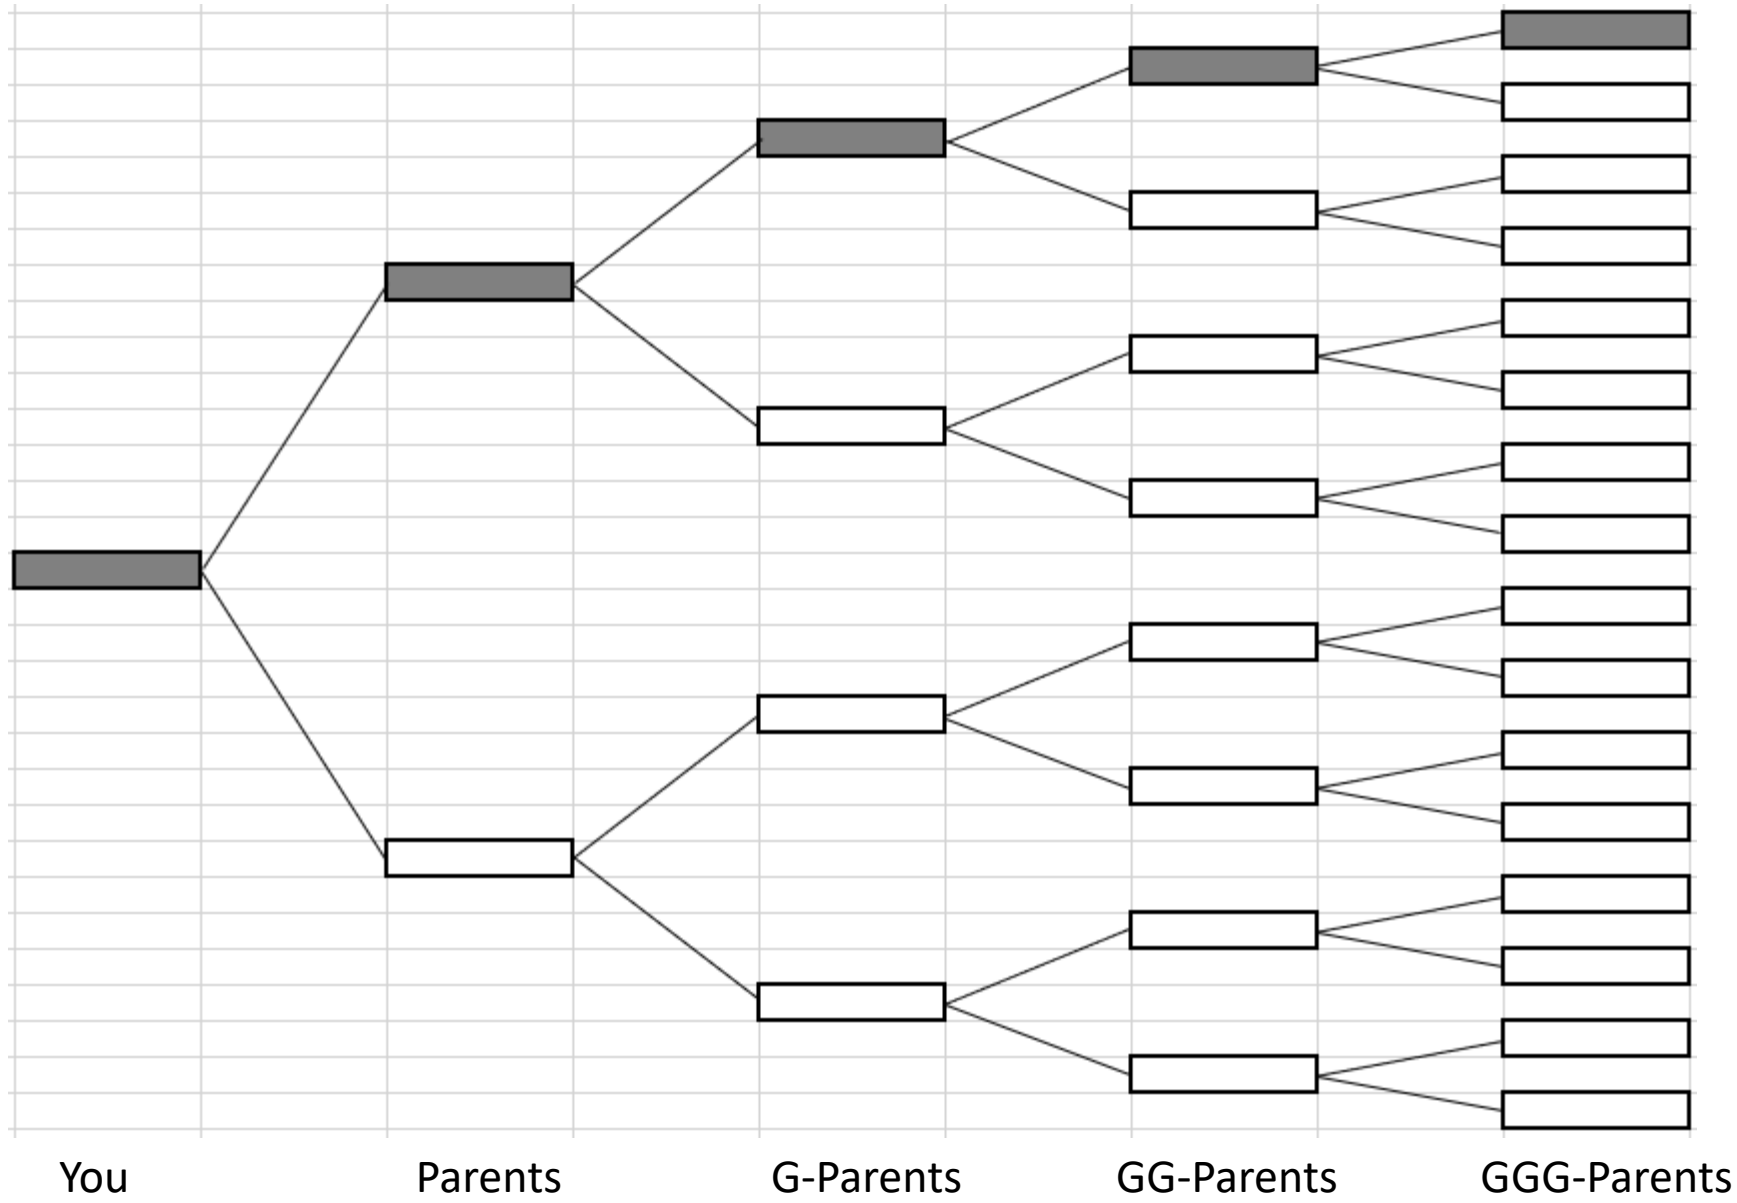

Today's Topics

1. Ancestry.com ThruLines™
2. MyHeritage Theory of Family Relativity™
3. Family Search Family Tree
4. FamilyTreeDNA Communities

Ethnicity Estimates

- They are only estimates
 - They are generalizing thousands of years of migration
- They have changed recently
 - More DNA samples are available
 - More detailed research has been performed
 - They will probably change again (and again and again...)

DNA Matches

- To have genealogical value, your DNA results must be compared to other DNA samples
- DNA testing identifies others who match your DNA
 - Close (genetic) relatives will share a lot of DNA
 - Distant (genetic) relatives will share less DNA
 - Unit of measurement: Centimorgans (cM)

Tony Hanson has a question!

May 26 @ 9:44am

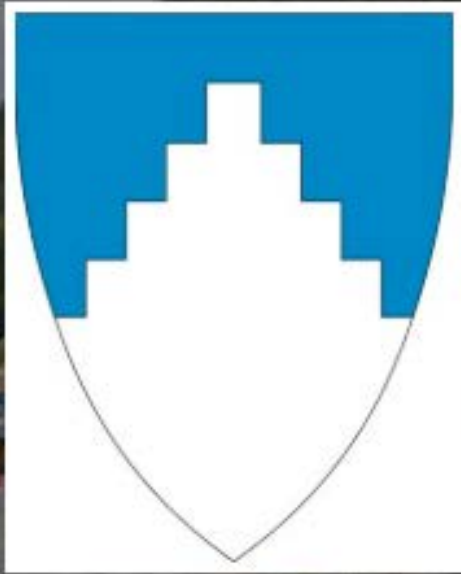

“ My great grandmother was born in Eidsvolds, Akershus, Norway in 1844. Both sets of church records were destroyed in a fire in 1877, so DNA is probably the only way I will ever be able to identify her family. is there an Eidsvolds specific project anywhere that is focused on correlating DNA matches with known conventional genealogical research? ”

Note

It appears that Anton was briefly employed from 18 March 1910 through 18 October 1910 when he was dismissed.

He was apparently rehired 26 March 1916 and worked through 30 April 1919 (and perhaps earlier... there is a record indicating he took some sort of exam on 25 January 1915).

His records also contain an unsigned deferment letter from 1918 that appears to have exempted him from service during the first World War.

Also, his employment application incorrectly states that he was born in 1885 (he was actually born in 1886).

 Who Were Laura's Parents?

Close

Comment • Edit • Delete

Description

Laura Larsdatter was born in Eidsvold Verk, Akershus, Norway on 14 October 1844. The Eidsvoll church records were destroyed by a fire in the Eidsvold church rectory in 1877, so records documenting her birth do not appear to exist. After extensive research I now believe that her parents were Lars Abrahamsen Rødshaugen and Anne Margrete Larsdatter.

Please refer to my website for a complete analysis of what information I considered in arriving at this conclusion:

Benefits of Using Family Search Family Tree

- Has Information about family members already been entered
- Hints/suggestions from Family Search
- Sharing what I know with other researchers
 - They can add information too!
- Makes what I know (and have documented) available to others
- Information about my family will be around a lot longer than I will

- Their reference population emphasizes Wales, Ireland and Great Britain
 - They may be able to identify locations for your genetic matches from these countries with greater accuracy than other companies
- They reportedly are working on similar capabilities for Germany
